$755.00 Non Member Price

Range masters and firearms instructors must be proficient in a broad-spectrum of skills including organization training, and documentation. They must have a comprehensive understanding of the responsibility undertaken when accepting this position. Programs they design and implement may result in taking a life that could result in litigation. To prepare for that liability, range masters and firearms instructors must constantly prepare for community scrutiny and judicial review.

The Complete Range Master course is designed to develop skills to manage any law enforcement range.

In addition to standard state qualification courses, firearms training must incorporate beneficial exercises and employ adult learning strategies. Training teams must present consistent and purposeful courses based on state standards and realistic events. An instructor who teaches from stale and outdated material is a liability to himself and his organization. The Complete Range Master course ensures they are properly presenting quality and useful material.

The three-day Complete Range Master course emphasizes developing useable skills including lesson plan development through live-fire student-designed and graded practical exercises. The Complete Range Master is designed for both novice and veteran firearms instructors to an advanced phase of their careers and duties.

The learning objectives of the CRM course are:

Justification for Range Master Selection and position justification

Application of Adult Learning Principles

Lesson Plan Development and presentation

Safety of range personnel and attending students

Range Incident Action Plans including Medical Emergencies

Span and Overall Control of the Range Master

Budget Development for the Range Master

Pertinent Case Law

Policy and Procedure Development for the Range Master

Scheduling and Record Keeping for the Range Master

Emphasis on developing immediate useable skills

Range design and maintenance

Hazard material abatement
